

an affidavit documenting her indigence, Flakes' action is otherwise deficient. Her action does not state a claim upon which relief can be granted by this Court.

In her complaint, Flakes alleges that the Defendants "failed to keep proper records of [her] loan payments," and "tried to make [her] pay for a second loan" (Doc. 1, p. 3). In addition, Flakes asserts that mortgage payments that she sent to the Defendants "somehow ... [were] misplaced and [were not] recorded [properly]" (Doc. 1, p. 4). Because of the Defendants' actions, Flakes alleges, she suffered from "stress and lots of worry ... high blood pressure, and ... lack of sleep" and was forced to go into bankruptcy (Doc. 1, pp. 3, 5).

Notably, although Flakes claims that the Defendants' alleged conduct "violated [her] rights under the Federal Code" (Doc. 1, p. 5), she fails to mention a specific right or federal statute that the Defendants' actions violated. Having conducted extensive research, the Court is unable to discern a federal cause of action that can be made out by the allegations contained in Flakes' complaint.

Accordingly, the Court DISMISSES Flakes' cause of action for lack of subject matter jurisdiction.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DATED this 8th day of December, 2005.
